American Indian Heritage Month Classes

Sponsored by Disney and TARGET

In celebration of American Indian Heritage Month, Disney, TARGET, ABC7, Mayor Antonio R. Villaraigosa, and the Department of Cultural Affairs will host music classes as part of the Music LA program for elementary, middle, and high school students. Community partners will participate by conducting three unique cultural music programs to celebrate, preserve, and promote various native music traditions, from Northern style pow-wow drumming and singing to indigenous flute music. American Indian musical and cultural forms will be explored and presented in their historical contexts, relying heavily on precious knowledge passed down generation after generation through oral tradition. Student participation will include performance training in an ensemble setting through workshops and rehearsals. After six to eight weeks of instruction, all students will take part in a culminating community performance. All classes are designed to celebrate American Indian culture, foster pride and understanding of native music, and are free and open to the public.

Instruments will be provided. Please contact a Music LA site below for enrollment details, class schedules, and to pre-register.

When: September through November
Cost: Free
Sponsors: Disney, TARGET, ABC7, Office of the Mayor, and the Department of Cultural Affairs

Southern California American Indian Center

United American Indian Involvement, Inc. and Southern California Indian Center will be offering a Native American Drum, Singing, and Dance workshop. Through this experience, students will utilize the protocols and teachings of the drum, songs, and dance as they relate to cultural values that lead to positive cultural identity for urban Native American youth.
